

July 7, 2010

Save the Poudre hosts free event featuring Cousteau's granddaughter

By Coloradoan news services

Alexandra Cousteau, who is the granddaughter of famed ocean environmentalist Jaques Cousteau, will be visiting Fort Collins on Saturday as a part of her worldwide "Expedition: Blue Planet" tour. She is an internationally famous explorer, environmentalist, TV host and keynote speaker.

The main event for the tour's visit will be a free public evening event highlighting the tour's international adventures. Video clips, a slideshow, and a talk by Cousteau are included. Donations will also be accepted to benefit environmental groups working to clean up the oil spill along the Gulf of Mexico.

The event, hosted by Save the Poudre: Poudre Waterkeeper, will be at 7-9 p.m. Saturday at the Armory Events Hall at 314 East Mountain Ave., Fort Collins.

---